Watering Ban Is Expanded

Manager Richard Bowen added to the list of municipal water restrictions this week by imposing an immediate ban on all hose watering of shrubs and gardens. From now on, only bucket or watering can dousing is permissible, he ruled.

Now restricted are:

1. Car washing.
2. Lawn watering.
3. Pool filling.
4. The use of air conditioning equipment that is not out-fitted with a water reclaiming device.
5. And now, all but bucket watering of shrubs and flower gardens.

The Mears division of United Shoe Machinery Corp. will move all its warehousing, shipping and a part of its fabricating operation from its Lawrence plant into the first floor of the main building at the former Marland Mills location.

The company manufactures high fashion plastic heels for women's shoes.

E. E. Joiner, of Andover, the division's general manager, said this week that the shift is in progress and should be complete by the end of August. By that time some 30 to 40 of the company's 200 Lawrence employees will be employed out of Andover.

Mears has been warehousing its heels in an abandoned textile mill in the neighboring city and returning them to the Beacon St. plant in South Lawrence for shipping. This, said Joiner, has proved to be costly.

In addition, said the general manager, increased sales have led to crowding at the division's 80,000

The Board of Selectmen quickly disposed of two real estate proposals on Town Hall sites Monday and went on to a lengthier discussion of the worsening water situation.

After a gloomy report from Town Manager Richard Bowen on the limited prospects for any improvement in the water level at Pump's Pond, the board acted promptly to schedule an August 16 Town Meeting for immediate approval of the long-planned Fish Brook project.

Armed with a favorable vote, town officials believe they can get a dam in place at the point where Fish Brook joins the Merrimack in time to trap the early spring runoff that comes about January or February. If this can be accomplished, Bowen said, it will add an estimated million gallons a day to the reserve at Haggetts.

Ultimately, the Fish Brook project is planned so that it could develop as many as 10 million gallons per day, but this will require the installation of heavier pumping equipment than is necessary for current use.

The manager is rushing this week to update cost estimates, last quoted at $1 million. In addition, he and the board are keeping abreast of developments in Washington where a new program has been approved which will provide

Planning Board Likes Barnard Site For T.H.

The Planning Board has recommended acquisition of the Barnard property at Elm Square as its number one choice of those remaining as a possible site for the new town hall.

It eliminated from its consideration the nearby Square & Compass lot owned by Danton Realty Trust, and proposed a hall built with its entrance on High St.

The move took into account the now confirmed report that Standard International Corp. has expressed a stated preference for construction of the office building which will bear its name on the Danton lot as contracted. John Davidson and Phideas Dantos, owners of the square property, offered it to the town as a town hall site just ahead of a June 21 Town Meeting called to consider acquisition of the Killorin property adjacent to the municipal parking lot as an extension of the then favored location for the municipal office building.

The Board of Selectmen has been hung up since with complications arising from Danton's last-minute, pre-town meeting purchase of the Killorin property and from the price tag and lease arrangements Danton has asked in exchange for surrender of the Square & Compass lot. The developers proposed to put the Standard International Building on the former Killorin land if the town would agree to its leasing of parking and landscaping areas. Daniel Hogan, Standard's president, said this week, however, that his company still looks upon the Square & Compass lot as the most desirable spot for the building it is to occupy. "Our original interest was in a professional type building and we thought that (S&C) site was suited to such a building. We have seen no other site that in any way approaches it," he said.

The Board of Selectmen is not due to give Danton an answer on its proposal until July 26, but advance indications are that the word will be "no deal."

But until it is definite, John Davidson does not consider the issue closed. He said this week that he feels it is premature to consider that Standard has ruled out the property switch he proposed since the company has not been approached with specifics. If the town were to outline any sort of acceptance of the lease proposal, this would give Davidson what he says he needs for site-change negotiations with Standard.

Meanwhile, the Board of Selectmen is officially silent on the offer made by Karl Killorin that the town pick up a $2.2 million option on the Sacred Heart School property in Shawsheen. Killorin would like to retain a lot with Main Street frontage for his personal development as a commercial property.

Unofficially it is known that no serious consideration is being given to this proposal.

In its report to the Selectmen, the Planning Board listed Bartlet Street as its alternate choice for a Town Hall location. This is a restatement of a previous position and underscores the board's objection to having the municipal building cut into the commercial flow of the Shaw property block.

LITTERED WITH THE PROOF, the beach at Pomp's Pond as it looked last weekend when uncounted numbers of dead fish floated to the surface, alerting the pond staff to a large sized kill.

Methuen Offers Loan Of Beach

One municipal neighbor offered Andover emergency use of its swimming facilities this week, and another cancelled out an unofficial invitation.

Methuen selectmen voted Monday to permit Andover residents to use that community's Town Forest facilities on weekdays for the duration of the Pomp's Pond emergency, created by a weekend fish kill.

North Andover's superintendent of public works, William B. Duffy, however, refused to stand behind his recreation staff's informal offer of aid. "We have all we can do to take care of our own", he said.

Late Monday, after the Andover Board of Selectmen had already voted to thank its next-door neighbor for the invitation, it was learned that Duffy had not been consulted.

Responsible for the confusion was an informal agreement made between Andover waterfront employees and those at the North Andover swimming hole. Recreation Director Leslie Bartow said Tuesday that he was not aware that the public works department was in charge of North Andover swimming facilities. He accepted the arrangement made between waterfront directors as official and reported it as such to Town Manager Richard Bowen.

TOWN MEETING SET FOR AUG.

communities with 50% federal aid for water facilities projects. Congressman Bradford Morse told municipal officials in the Fifth District this week that funds are not yet appropriated for the water program, but that he is hopeful they will be in time for assistance this year.

Financing

Whether the town has to finance 50 or 100 percent of the cost of constructing the necessary dam, basin and catching facilities, Bowen said he feels the town can pay for its share by increasing water rates.

Stating that the present schedule of rates is not in line with the costs of operating the system, Bowen said it is certain that the town water department now operates at a deficit. He is accelerating a planned study of all the costs involved (which includes incorporating some percentage of the salaries of administrative people who have a water department function, for example), in order to find out just how far in the hole the town goes.

The manager made it clear that in his opinion the water service, a public utility, should be self supporting. Basing his figures on an admittedly rough estimate, the manager told Selectmen he believes that the addition of just 80 to 90 cents a month to each user's monthly water bill could bring the department out of the hole and finance the whole of the Fish Brook project.

Bowen announced some months ago his plans for a self-sufficiency study which could lead to the establishing of the water department as a separate fiscal entity. At present, water fees go into the general fund.

Town Hall

There were people at Monday's board meeting who were obviously primed for a free-for-all re-discussion of the Town Hall issue, but Chairman Philip K. Allen held the board to its agenda and disposed of both Danton Realty Trust and Killorin site offers in a matter of minutes.

Selectman William Stewart made the motion which was carried unanimously as a refusal of Danton's plot-switch plan which would have involved the town's leasing of portions of the present municipal parking lot to the realty firm. Danton was willing to sell the town the Square & Compass Club lot on Elm Square in exchange of enough parking lot land to make the one-time Killorin property on Main Street desirable as a site for its proposed Standard International Building.

Neither John Davidson nor Phideas Dantos, Danton partners, was on hand to hear the vote.

Dismissed even more quickly was Karl Killorin's suggestion that the town pick up a $2.2 million option he holds on the Sacred Heart School property in Shawheen Square and utilize the school building as a town hall, school etc. His plan would have required the town to sacrifice a 30,000 square foot plot, the school's "front lawn", which fronts on Main Street as part of the bargain.

Manager Bowen pointed out that the price tag on location was "far in excess" of anything the town could afford.

Planner's Suggestions

The Planning Board's recommendation that the town locate its office building on the Lally (one-time Barnard) property at Elm Square was discussed. In original letter to the board, the planners restricted themselves to suggesting the acquisition of just the Lally property and the adjacent Barnard barn. The board mentioned an assessed valuation of $63,000 and a "possible purchase price" of $100,000. It was reported unofficially this week, however, that owners of the Lally site are talking about a price well in excess of this figure.

In a follow-up letter, the board recommended as well the acquisition of all or nearly all of two nearby lots which could be developed for parking and reached via an access 700' from Elm St., thereby easing the traffic situation at the square.

Manager Bowen said later that the Lally and Barnard barn properties plus the small park area that the town already owns at Elm Square would, in combination, make up the some 50,000 sq. ft. it is estimated are necessary for the 21,000 sq. ft. building planned. If it is determined that locating a town hall on High Street would compound traffic problems in this area, the cure could price the location out of the running.

As an alternate, the Planning Board proposes locating the office building on Bartlet Street. Also still under consideration, the Shaw property, with and without the former Killorin lot. The Selectmen's refusal of Danton's plot switch did not rule out the possibility that they will revert to their plan of last June to ask for authority to take the Main Street lot by eminent domain.

Tennis Pros Coming Here

A pair of prize winning tennis pros will play an exhibition match on the courts at Abbot Academy July 31 at 1:30 p.m.

"Brownie" and Joan Soule, 1964 winners of the New England Lawn Tennis Assn. "Pro of the Year" award, have been signed for the appearance by Mrs. Amy O. Johnson and Mrs. Helen E. Rich, Andover women in charge of a non-profit Junior Tennis Development Program offered here this summer. The exhibition is to be open to the public.

For the past five years the Soules had been operating a tennis school in the Greater Boston area. They taught their 5,000th student during the 1964 season.

They have also conducted free group and individual instruction clinics and exhibitions for clubs, recreation departments etc, throughout central New England.

The Youth Tennis Foundation of New England sponsors the Soule tennis school. It is this group which benefits from the tennis program now in progress at Abbot.

Math Concepts Taught Earlier And Earlier

(A Townsman News Feature)

If you're a parent, you may feel pretty smug about having finally gotten it through your thick adult head that it's bad form to cling to the antiquated notion that 7 minus 3 is 4 when any six-year-old can tell you that 7 take away 3 is 4.

Or maybe you have already been hit with the news that the best way to subtract is to add - it takes 3 ones together with 4 ones to make 7, making it pretty obvious what remains if you wipe out three of the accumulated units.

Such little shifts in attitudes and terminology are but minor fragments of an educational program that is dramatically transforming arithmetic from a haphazard collection of "basic facts" and "computing techniques" into elementary mathematics, a creative and practical tool for youngsters who must learn to out think automated machines.

Involved is the watering down of mathematical concepts for juvenile consumption. The child who grows up with modern math is going to be exposed, for example, to subtle doses of ingredients that are basic to geometry and algebra. The earlier relating of such principles to his number understanding will not only equip him to swallow major doses at an earlier age, but will also make the transition more palatable.

Effective with the beginning of the fall term, if all goes according to schedule, every elementary school child in Andover will be involved in the shift from a strictly rote and memorization approach to arithmetic to a system which encourages each pupil to use his noggin.

Modern math was introduced here in grades one through four last year. Effective with September, the new curriculum will be adopted in the fifth and sixth grades. Even the tykes in kindergarten are not being ignored: they dabbled in "set concepts" the latter half of last year and will really plunge into sorting out collections of objects, things and ideas at a more advanced level next term.

Andover began its classroom experimentation with the new approach to mathematics instruction several years ago by scheduling a very pure modern math program for top notch junior high school students. From here the technique spread to the senior high school where Curriculum Coordinator Lauriston Ward says the present math program has a "strong modern emphasis."

Elementary Program

In use at the elementary level is a split system which utilizes materials published by one textbook house in the first three grades, and those of another publisher from grades three to six.

In all, there are as many as 10-15 varied systems of incorporating the modern math theory into elementary texts, Ward says. Some take a transitional approach and others represent a completely thorough or "pure" reorganization of arithmetic studies. Of the two systems being taught in the lower grades here, that presently given to grades one through three is the purer. Students further along with traditional approaches are being weaned on a course that makes for easier transition.

Some even stronger stuff is being thrown at high aptitude students at South and Sanborn where the homogenous grouping of pupils permits the use of a tougher text at the top levels, Ward said.

Why Change?

The impetus for the revolution in mathematics came from the mathematicians themselves. New uses for mathematics are being found almost daily, and new mathematics is being created at the same furious pace. More additions to this science have been made in the twentieth century alone, than in all previously recorded history, according to one book publisher. Statistics, linear programming, decision-making and best strategies are the names of a few of the new disciplines which, though Americans like meat. But evidently not as much as the people of Uruguay, Argentina, New Zealand and Australia.

Per capita consumption of meat in all four of these countries outstrips U. S. Consumption by 30 or more pounds.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in 1963

Americans consumed -- on the average -- 169 pounds of meat. Per capita consumption in Uruguay was 203 pounds; Argentina, 216; Australia, 219; and New Zealand, 240 pounds.

Start Digging

The Selectmen have proposed an acceleration of Fish Brook reservoir plans and will ask an August 16 Town Meeting to authorize immediate construction of the long-planned dam.

If we can have it in place by January or February, in time for the first of the pre-spring thaws, we can expect to start next summer with Haggett's Pond riding high. Otherwise it is virtually a certainty that Andover will have another water poor year. Even if she did a complete about face, it is doubtful that nature could dump enough water in rainfall to accomplish the same end.

The Board of Selectmen was primed to offer the dam project for voter approval in March. We agree with them, however, that to abide by a pre-drought capital expenditures schedule in the face of a water emergency would be foolhardy.

Down The Stretch

The Selectmen and the manager deftly sidetracked another long winded discussion of town hall possibilities at Monday's meeting. They neatly disposed of Danton Realty Trust site offers and went on to other business, to the visible disappointment of the proponents of one and another solutions to the much belabored dilemma.

The Board has accumulated a varied collection of opinions on the town hall question. If they are to be expected to consider still undisclosed suggestions, and we strongly suspect they will be, the time is now. If there are citizens, developers, contractors or whatever who believe they have a FRESH and appealing idea up their sleeves, it would behoove them to put it on record now, while there is still time for everyone to get a fair whack at it before town meeting.

The deliberations on this issue have been long and tedious and the opportunities for reappraisal unlimited. Consequently, any attempts at last-minute, grandstand plays from the floor of town meeting should be viewed with suspicion.

It is brass tacks time . . . time for the Selectmen to put their names to the kind of a cost-conscious deal that would look good to them if they were making a personal corporate investment. We would like to see them come up with a single proposal so clean cut that it would plow right through the accumulated debris and present the majority with the kind of decision it can embrace enthusiastically.

And for the record, this could not, to our way of thinking, include any proposal that would plunk the town hall on the Shaw property, right in the middle of a developing commercial area. Nor could it include any plan to relegate the town's headquarters to the back of a municipal parking lot.

If Andover is of a mind to divert a portion of the former Shaw land to any other than its present use, then we say, "sell it to the highest bidder." If recent real estate transactions can be considered a barometer, we are sitting on quite a municipal nest egg.

Dutch Elm Battle Is Viewed As Big Debacle

It's the little things in life that count.

For instance, a microscopic fungus can - and does - lay great elms low.

This trouble, which travels in a tiny package of spore, smaller than a grain of dust, so far has evaded man's best efforts to stomp on it. For one thing, although man has learned since 1945 how to fire teams into outer space, he has had a great deal of trouble inducing any systemic chemical to travel through the sap channels to the top of an elm tree.

The tiny spore to which we refer is, of course, the "seed" of the fungus that causes Dutch elm disease.

Since 1930 when the disease invaded the United States at an Ohio veneer factory, the states have spent literally millions of dollars spraying, cutting and experimenting on elms.

From an objective view, the whole battle has been a debacle. The most charitable observer would have to admit that it has not been a success. We not only still have Dutch elm disease but also it has continued to spread.

In a way, the New England battle against Dutch elm disease, which began in Connecticut in 1933, was a pioneer effort in that field to which President Johnson exhorts us all to spend our energy - the preservation of natural beauty. For the battle has been to save street-side elms. Wild elms received almost no attention.

The most substantial contribution that the Dutch elm disease has made to our culture is the certification - backed up by both man-hours and money - that beauty has value. Whole communities have recognized - many for the first time - that appearance of the village does count. It counts, for instance, in the real estate market.

Unfortunately, the price paid in the attempt to control Dutch elm disease involves more than money and labor. Our lawn birds, particularly the robin, and many beneficial insects have suffered from the long-persisting chemicals, such as DDT, which have been used as pesticides. A recent survey by a team of Dartmouth College scientists collected 151 dead or dying birds (29 with tremors) in Hanover, N. H., where elms had been sprayed with DDT. They found 10 dead birds (none with tremors) in Norwich, Vt., a mile away, where the trees had

The Soft Sell

We can agree that it would be useless to make a highly intellectual appeal to prospective Job Corps enlistees: school drop-outs and others of our youthful unemployed could scarcely be expected to respond.

But it is somehow degrading that in order to reach those whose will to progress needs artificial stimulation, we must resort to a lowest-common-denominator approach.

In New York City, where Job Corps recruitment is reputed to be lagging, Economic Opportunity officials recently used rock and roll singers and dancers to pitch the poverty program.

For their theme song, they introduced a ballad titled "Jobs-A-Go-Go." Its verses, one for boys and one for girls follow:

*A-standing on that street,
Do you wish you had some bread to put
Some new shoes on your feet?
Do you want a set of wheels
To take some boss chick out?
If you haven't got a job, forget it man
Cause you are out.*

Hey Chick!

*You wish you had some threads
Cause when you are looking good the guys
Will stop and turn their heads?
And it ain't no big thing,
Other chicks know the way.
You know they look so fine in things they buy
With that weekly pay.*

Maybe it takes such an unidealistic, materialistic appeal to convince the economically deprived youth of our nation that a deal which includes free job training, upkeep and $80 a month should be regarded as cool, real cool.

Frankly, we doubt it. Without question, subtlety is required, for people conditioned to being on the outside looking in are often instinctively wary of do-gooders from the right side of the tracks.

But, in our opinion, any young person who has it in him to amount to a hill of beans will more readily believe in simple logic and unmistakable sincerity than in bad poetry set to music.

If this is not so, then we had better forget about the Job Corps and concentrate our big guns on Headstart and any other project that will lift the sights of youngsters who have not already accepted poverty as a way of life.

not been sprayed. In Hanover, the robin population on June 1 was down 70 per cent from the population of May 1. In Norwich, the May 1 and June 1 populations were approximately the same. They found also that such insect-eating birds as myrtle warblers and tree swallows, which had arrived weeks after the spraying died from DDT poisoning apparently through eating insects that survived the spraying but carried DDT in their systems. Through eating many DDT-contaminated insects, birds concentrate a fatal dose within their bodies.

This season a new chemical - so deadly to humans that only experts are qualified to use it - has been turned against Dutch elm disease. It is a systemic chemical that is injected into an elm. It shows promise but still must be considered in an experimental stage.

A more-balanced view - one that considers more than the tree alone - also has been emerging from the ranks of Dutch elm disease battlers. The Massachusetts Audubon Society and the State Department of Natural Resources last week announced a new publication: "Protecting Your Community's Elms." It contains much new information. For a free copy, send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Public Relations, Massachusetts Audubon Society, Lincoln, Massachusetts 01773.

Face Of Upper Main St. Sure To Change, But When?

John Davidson, a partner in Danton Realty Trust, said Tuesday that he and Phideas Dantos will begin construction of a Standard International Building on the former Square & Compass property at Elm Square "the day after" they have official word about whether or not the town intends to re-route High St.

Though the pair has begun discussion of possible development of their property at 77 Main St. (the former Killorin building), Davidson said a decision on this must also be held until the Board of Selectmen announces its plans for a new town hall.

As Davidson pointed out, the board's refusal this week of Danton's site-switching proposal (which would have permitted the town to acquire the area earmarked for the Standard building) did not rule out the possibility that the Selectmen may decide to revert to their original plan to take the Main street property as an expansion of the adjoining municipal parking lot to spacious town hall proportions.

If this prospect is ultimately ruled out, Davidson said the trust will turn the Killorin location into a "more elaborate commercial property than it is now." This could mean, he said, changes in the present structure or the construction of a completely new building, depending on which turns out to make the most sense. He indicated that at least a portion of the property will be used for retail purposes.

There is continued talk of another project which could also change the face of the Main Street block that begins at Chestnut Street.

Postmaster Francis Mooney confirmed this week that the Post Office Department is still considering an expansion of the present PO building as a solution to the office's space problems. This would be possible in a 20 foot area between the PO as it now stands and the next-door Danton-Killorin land, Mooney said.

Mooney said that federal postal officials are in agreement with him that Andover "desperately" needs more mail handling space. "If we don't do something soon, we'll be out in the street," he said.

No decision has been made, however, as to whether expansion at the present site should be undertaken. The alternatives, Mooney explains, are federal construction of a new building or the leasing of new facilities as is now being done in Lawrence where a new post office was just opened in the city's urban renewal area. In recent years the Post Office Department has gone increasingly to the leasing of its facilities from private companies.

Heart Fund Total Told

Dr. Charles J. Kokulis, president of Essex North Chapter, Mass. Heart Ass'n., Inc., has announced a final 1965 campaign receipt total of $43,920.96 to which is added $9,721.87 of bequests and unusual special gifts for a grand total income for the year ended June 30, 1965, of $54,642.83.

Of this amount, $20,926.81 has been designated for research studies (not yet named) for the next year. The Essex North Chapter has already sent $10,728.56 to support state and national programs.

The break down of total campaign receipts is as follows: Amesbury - $2,226.22; Andover - $6,184.77; Boxford - $699.21; Georgetown - $1,112.66; Groveland - $1,070.71; Haverhill - $13,174.55; Lawrence - $6,948.26; Merrimac - $656.64; Methuen - $4,399.66; Newburyport - $3,090.28; North Andover - $3,077.70; Rowley - $518.02; Salisbury - $180.99; West Newbury - $581.29.

Griggs — Kaylor

Miss Nancy Lillian Kaylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kaylor, Jenkins Rd., and Albert Norton Griggs, son of Mrs. Theodora A. Griggs of Wakefield and Ralph W. Griggs of Sudbury were married June 27 in an afternoon wedding at Union Congregational Church in North Reading. Rev. William Diegelman officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white silk organza and Chantilly lace over taffeta. The lace-appliqued skirt fell from a lace bodice which was cut with a square neck and tapered sleeves. The gown's detachable Watteau train was encircled with scallops of matching Chantilly lace. For her headpiece, the bride wore a double tiered coronet of pearl-trimmed lace and aurora crystals with a bouffant veil of silk illusion attached. She carried a cascade of white carnations, pink tearoses and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Sandra Cameron of Gloucester, and the bridesmaid, Miss Virginia Eaton of North Reading, were gowned alike in powder blue gowns styled with an Empire waistline and accented with taffeta bows. They wore matching veils with fresh pink-tipped white carnations as their headdresses and their flowers were fan-shaped bouquets of pink carnations interlaced with ivy.

Paul R. Smor of Adelphi, Md. was best man and ushers were Chandler Eaton of North Reading, Robert L. Smith and Roy C. Trulson, both of Reading.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kaylor chose an aqua knit dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink tea roses. Mrs. Griggs wore pink chiffon over taffeta in a costume with a matching jacket. Her flowers were red tearoses.

Following a reception at Andover Country Club, the couple left for a wedding trip through the northern New England states. For her departure, the bride wore a royal blue linen dress with a white eyelid coat.

The bride is a graduate of Andover High School and prior to her marriage was a secretary for a real estate brokerage firm.

The bridegroom graduated from Reading High School and Northeastern University. Prior to joining Raytheon, Andover, as an electronics engineer, he served two years as a first lieutenant in the U. S. Army Signal Corps. He is currently working toward a master's degree.

The Griggs' are making their home at 8 Yale Rd., Andover.

Declines 43.5% NE Air Service

Congressman F. Bradford Morse (R-Mass) this week released a Civil Aeronautics Board report showing that air service has declined on 43.5 per cent of the New England routes since 1960.

Morse said, "this report is even worse than I expected. At a time when regional development is imperative, we should be seeing an increase, not a decline in air service in New England."

The Congressman requested the CAB study in connection with testimony he prepared for a Senate Aviation Subcommittee hearing earlier this month.

CAB officials told Morse, "there has been a decline in the number of certificated points within the 'New England areas.' The report went on to note that eight cities have been deleted from the Northeast Airlines certificate since 1960. These cities are Lawrence, Pittsfield, Fitchburg, Greenfield, Portsmouth, Newport, Brunswick and Millinocket."

"In addition," Morse pointed out, "six previously separate points, Presque Isle and Houlton, Augusta and Waterville, Maine and Manchester and Concord, New Hampshire have been combined into three points."

"When these deletions and combinations are put with the 27 routes on which service has declined and the 16 routes on which service has been eliminated," Morse continued, "we have a pretty sorry picture."

The Congressman pointed out the inconsistency in government policy which has brought the decline in service, "while the Federal Aviation Agency and state and local governments are spending money for bigger and better airports, the Civil Aeronautics Board is insuring that these airports will remain virtually idle. This is not only a waste of time and money, it disserves the New England economy," Morse said.

In his testimony before the Senate Committee, Morse called for review and coordination of federal policy in this area and for the prompt development of a new short-haul aircraft.

"One of the reasons for the decline noted in the CAB report, the Massachusetts legislator said, 'is the absence of economical aircraft. We should not be depending on aircraft that is three decades old for our access to population and commercial centers in New England.'"

The Congressman has introduced legislation calling on the Federal Aviation Agency to develop, test and promote the production of a new plane that would be smaller, and more economical than the DC-3. "Although the FAA started a development project in 1963 after I introduced this legislation the first time," Morse continued, "they abandoned the program when the designs submitted were not completely to their liking. In my judgment the CAB report indicates how important such a development program is."

Bowen Calls Site Ample

Town Manager Richard Bowen said this week that in his view, it is not necessary to acquire the Cottage Farm property in South Andover as an addition to school site land already owned in the area off Rocky Hill Rd.

The $20,000 to $25,000 we would have to pay for this extra land can be better spent elsewhere, the manager said.

On the basis of state standards, five acres per elementary school plus one acre for each 100 students, Bowen said we now have more than enough land for the 650 pupil school planned for the South end of town. This rule of thumb would set the figure for necessary acreage at 11.5. With what the town now owns, plus a parcel it is to be given by Building Contractor George DeVries, we will have close to 15 acres, the manager reports.

NEW MATH TAUGHT HERE

grounded in classical mathematics, are essentially "new" or "modern" in the sense of "recently created," says this publisher.

Since established mathematical content does NOT become obsolete and shopworn through constant use (though frequently simplified), this backlog of knowledge in the field cannot just be tossed aside to make way for the new. Instead, as more is known and incorporated at the top, basic knowledge of the older concepts must be pushed down to educational totem pole for earlier and earlier learning.

If the practitioners are right, youngsters are going to be stimulated by the switchover. Inherent in this new approach to math is the use of "discovery" teaching. Drill is not eliminated, but much time is given over to guiding children toward the independent, creative use of their new number skills.

Right now we're aiming at algebra in the eighth grade. But the situation continues to be fluid.

Today's successful man makes enough money so his family can spend as much as the neighbors.

BUSINESS PROFILES*Ray Bresnahan, Manager "Filling Them Up"

Ray Bresnahan, manager of the Village Annex Texaco located at 14 North Main Street in Andover, operates one of the most promotionally minded gas stations in the greater Lawrence area.

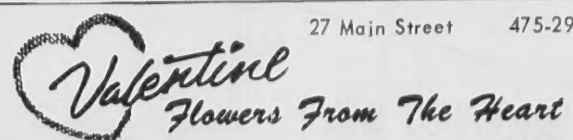

Aided by a staff of 8 workers Ray Bresnahan is able to service any car in a matter of minutes with either Texaco Skychief or Firechief gasoline both efficiently and courteously. This service, plus the many free gifts offered at the Annex like transistor radios, Easter Hams, Thanksgiving Turkeys, and vacuum cleaners has resulted in a large credit card business for the Annex. These frequent visitors, like all of the Annex's customers, especially like the 10,000 S&H Green Stamps given away frequently throughout the year on Double Stamp Days.

Ralph Bresnahan came to the Annex back in October of 1964 and has, since then, operated the duel pump station successfully for the Cyr Oil Company of Lawrence, the owners of the Village Texaco. The Annex is open six days a week from 6 a.m. til 10 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m. til 10 p.m.

Mr. Bresnahan invites you to visit the Annex to enjoy low priced gas and free gifts now or call 475-9888 anytime to find out more about the "Stop and Go Service" offered at the Village Annex Texaco Station.

PUBLIC HEARING
A public hearing will be held in the Conference Room, second floor, Town Hall, Andover, Mass., on Thursday, August 5, 1965, at 7:30 P.M. on the petition of JAMES F. & ALICE W. GALVIN for a variance from the requirements of Article VIII, Section VII.A of the Zoning By-laws to allow an addition on property located at Foster's Pond Road, shown as Lot 13 on the Assessor's Map 122.

BOARD OF APPEALS
ALFRED W. FULLER, Chairman
Dates of Issue:
July 22nd and 29th

Cash Grant Is Received

Merrimack College has received a cash grant for unrestricted use from Gulf Oil Corporation.

It is one of 584 awards, totalling $595,000 that Gulf will distribute this year as direct, unrestricted grants to as many universities and colleges under its Aid-To-Education Program.

In addition to direct grants, the other phases of Gulf's comprehensive Educational Assistance program include capital grants; Gulf merit scholarships to children of employees and annuitants; employee gift-matching to colleges; departmental assistance grants; graduate fellowships; and faculty supplementation grants.

Institutions eligible for direct grants are those which are privately operated and controlled, and which obtain a major portion of their financial support from non-tax sources.

According to Father McQuade, the Gulf grant will help finance the construction of Merrimack's proposed library, plans for which were announced at the College's commencement exercises in May.

The amount awarded to Merrimack College was $1,000.00, and the check was presented to Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., by J. L. Pettit, the petroleum company's area sales manager.

Suffocation Not Poison Blamed For Fish Kill

Fish which floated to the surface at Pomp's Pond Sunday were NOT poisoned by the copper sulfate used on Friday to kill an overgrowth of algae.

This is the conclusion of John J. Broderick, bacteriologist at the Lawrence Experiment Station. It is based on his examination of both dead fish and water samples taken from the pond at 12 noon on the day the fish kill was first detected.

They were victims instead, says Broderick, of the algae itself which, once killed, clogged the fish's gills and led to their suffocation. Broderick cites the fact that the oxygen content of the water was low as an additional factor in the kill.

The beach at the pond was closed after the discovery of the first dead fish by water front officials on Sunday. It is to be re-opened tomorrow with assurances from the Experiment Station official that the quantities of copper sulfate used in algae control are not harmful to humans.

The pond has been cleared and should, be a far pleasanter place to swim than it was a week ago, Manager Richard Bowen told Selectmen Monday.

In a report addressed to the Andover Board of Health, Broderick said that the copper sulfate residual from the sample taken on the shore was 0.4 P.P.M. (parts per million) and the residual from a sample taken 50 feet out was .24 P.P.M. Neither of these amounts should, he said, cause a kill of perch, horned pout or eels which can stand high tolerances of the chemical used in treating the pond.

The milk and health inspector told the board that the copper sulfate accounted for a massive kill of the algae form (Anabaena) that was the source of the original trouble at the pond. He reported that the count last week was in excess of 75,000 units, and after the treatment dropped to 550 units.

The pond was treated upon the advice of town health authorities and after consultation with state health officials, Bowen told the Selectmen at their meeting earlier this week. The purpose of the copper sulfate treatment was to curb what Inspector Broderick called an "excess" growth of algae.

The treatment was administered July 23 by Allied Biological Control Co. of Wellesley.

This latest situation with the pond should point up the sort of difficulties that can be expected more and more frequently, Manager Bowen told the Selectmen as Pomp's became a topic of general discussion at the board's regular meeting Monday.

DASA Split In Effect

DASA Corp. Andover, made its one-for-five "reverse split" effective at the close of business on Monday, July 26.

At a special meeting July 20, DASA shareholders voted to reduce DASA's authorized common stock from 8,000,000 shares par value $1, to 3,000,000 shares no par value, and to exchange the presently outstanding 7,247,528 shares for new shares on the basis of one new share for each five of the old shares.

No fractional shares were issued in the exchange, the company said. Where fractions occur, shareholders were given the opportunity either to sell a fraction, or to buy a fraction in order to make one whole share.

DASA produces MAGICALL Electronic Telephone Dialers and DATACALL products for automatic telegraphic transmission.
